CRAMER TAKES OFF ON HOP TO FAROE ISLANDS

American Flier Starts on Another Lap of Hazardous Transarctic Flight.

LINDY ANXIOUS TO START

Flying Vacationists Grow Restless as Weather Holds at Aklavik.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

REYJKAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 7—Parker D. Cramer, American aviator blazing an air mail trail across the Arctic, took off this afternoon for the Faroe islands, 450 miles from here.

Cramer landed here early this morning from Angmagsalik, Greenland, on his way to Copenhagen to map a transarctic air mail route from the United States.

Cramer refuelled his airplane and awaited weather reports from the Faroe islands, planning to continue his journey today.

After moving his plane into the harbor for refueling and having a short sleep, Cramer related something of his "mystery" flight, which first became known when he landed in Greenland.

"I left Detroit nine days ago," he told The Associated Press, "and experienced good weather all the way except for one bad day at Hudson's bay. I arrived at Hosteinborg, on the west coast on Tuesday and on Wednesday crossed the Greenland icecap to Angmagsalik in five hours, flying at an altitude of 9,600 feet. The glorious views over the sun illuminated snow fields will certainly be a great tourist attraction in the future."

After a good breakfast, Cramer awaited weather reports from the Faroe islands. The weather here was excellent, being calm and clear.

Lindberghs Anxious To Continue Flight

By The Associated Press

AKLAVIK, N. W. T., Aug. 7 — Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh grew restless today over the delay of their vacation flight to the Orient by continued bad weather reports from the west.

Comfortable conditions prevailed at this trading post, 130 miles north of the Arctic circle. The thermometer touched 74 degrees yesterday, with the sky cloudy and light winds whipping up the water of the Mackenzie.

To the west, however, at Point Barrow, 536 miles away, their next scheduled stop, at Nome, and at Fort Yukon, on the Yukon river messages said rain was falling With the delay here now more than two days, Col. Lindbergh had become uneasy.

"We are in a hurry to hop," he said last night, "but are undecided which way we shall go."

Meanwhile, he again went over his pontoon equipped monoplane, making more tests, and Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Urquhart, hosts to the couple, took turns with other whites and Eskimos here in offering entertainment.

In explanation of his plans, Lindbergh said weather conditions would decide their route after leaving Aklavik

Point Barrow was still locked by the Arctic ice pack, and gasoline supplies for Lindbergh aboard the cutter Northland have not arrived.

DRY AGENTS INVADE OHIO HILL COUNTRY

Area Ranked as Southern Secton's Distillery Scene of "Mop-Up" Drive.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7—A sudden drive to "mop up" the picturesque mine hideouts of the New Straitsville hill country, long the whisky-manufacturing center of southern Ohio, has been started by state and federal dry agents, International News Service was told today.

Forces of the two prohibition departments have been combined to conduct a series of raids on the stills which the veteran hill people, hidden deep in the hill foliage or far back in long-ago abandoned mine properties, have operated, almost unmolested, for several years.

Although the campaign has only started, five giant stills and nine reputed whisky-manufacturers have been brought out of southern Perry county to federal court here in only a short time, state and federal authorities revealed.

Frightened by the surprise raids, many of the distillers have abruptly halted operations, and prices of the New Straitsville whisky, one of the best known Ohio bootleg products, have soared to unexpected peaks, it was said.

Why the New Straitsville section was not previously troubled much by prohibition agents was not disclosed but arrests there in the past have been infrequent, it was understood.

Enough stills have been removed since the drive started to cut production 600 gallons or more a day, officers estimated.

GERMANY SEEKS TO BUY COTTON

Farm Board Asked To Sell 60,000 Bales on Three-Year Credit.

OPTION ON 200,000 MORE

South Protests Sale of Stabilization Surplus Rather Than Current Crop.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 7—Germany is negotiating through the American embassy for the purchase of 30 to 40 million dollars worth of cotton from the American board, it was learned today from a most reliable source.

The deal is for 600,000 bales, with an option on another 200,000 bales on the basis of three years' credit, payable by bills of exchange in dollars at four and one half per cent interest.

SOUTH PROTESTS PLAN

Asks Sale of Current Crop in Preference to Surplus.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—The farm board had before it for early consideration today a proposal from Germany for the purchase of stabilization cotton on long term credits and protests against the plan from the American cotton trade.

The administration sponsored a proposition to permit the farm board to unload some of its 1,300,000 bales of cotton to stimulate that industry and at the same time aid Germany meet opposition before the offer of the Reich was received.

Since the overtures were initiated by Ambassador Sackett at Berlin with the approval of President Hoover, the protests against the plan have been augmented by demands from southern senators, cotton traders, and growers that the stabilization cotton be held to permit the current crop to be sold. The contention that disposal of a part of the stabilization surplus in Germany would deprive the American cotton farmer of an important market has been advanced.

The German offer transmitted to the state department yesterday by Ambassador Sackett and immediately was referred to the farm board. It had been hoped in administration circles that disposal of some of the stabilization cotton to Germany would go far toward reviving the industry and thereby bring a more healthy condition to other depressed commodities.

TEXAS OWNERS BACK MURRAY OIL SHUTDOWN

Oklahoma Fight To Boost Crude Oil Price Spreads to Neighboring State.

"NULLIFIERS" DENOUNCED

Small Refiners Commence To Feel Pinch of Non-Production in Oklahoma.

By The Associated Press

TYLER, Tex., Aug. 7—Oklahoma's oil shutdown movement has penetrated to the heart of the east Texas oil fields and won the indorsement of 37 of 60 operators in the area.

The 37 operators voted at a meeting here yesterday to voluntarily shut down their wells and asked that a mass meeting be held here Aug. 14, at which time the order would be officially declared.

East Texas operators offering oil to Oklahoma refiners while National Guardsmen patrolled that state's producing areas were denounced. They were charged with "nullifying the efforts" of Governor W. H. Murray, who is seeking, by martial law, to increase the price for crude from a top of 50 cents to a minimum of $1.

By resolution the operators expressed admiration for Governor Murray and euluogized his "masterful and courageous" action in handling the oil sitaation in Oklahoma.

"It is regrettable indeed that the same fine character of leadership and courage has not been shown in Texas," the resolutuion said.

At Austin, Governor Ross S Sterling said the Texas legislature should procure results vital to the oil industry within a "few days."

OPERATIONS AT STANDSTILL

Refiners Feel Pinch of Non-Production in Oklahoma.

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug 7—Lines in the battle of Governor W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray for higher crude oil prices were drawn tightly today, with virtually all Oklahoma flush fields operations halted.

Small refiners began to feel the pinch of lack of crude prices paid by purchasers for the product, however, had not varied from their former tops of 42 and 50 cents per barrel. Murray said the minimum should be $1.

Less than 150 wells of the 3,106 mentioned in Governor Murray's order were open today. They were exempted small "tripper" wells, gassers or wells pumping water.

NEW RELIGIOUS WAR THREATENS IN SPAIN

Proposal To Expel Church Orders from Country Brings Protests.

By The Associated Press

MADRID, Aug. 7—A measure incorporating into the new constitution expelling religious orders from Spain and confiscating their wealth will be presented to the national assembly by parliamentary commission.

The proposal would be embodied in an article dealing with the relations of church and state and would abolish the official religion as well as terminate subventions for confessional institutions.

The country has 50 Catholic orders, with a membership of 45,000 monks and nuns. The church proper, plus its various orders, owns 5,000 pieces of property officially valued at 75,000,000 pesetas (about $6,000,000). This figure excludes valuable art treasures.

When news of the commission's decision was learned great excitement resulted. A group of Communists which tried to parade through downtown streets was charged by police and three were wounded. Their leaders were calling for a red revolution.

Catholic circles, informed of the menace to their religion, inaugurated action which was considered likely to have the most tremendous repercussion since the anti-religious disorders in May.

Churchwomen contend that the measure reflects the Socialist complexion of the assembly and cannot pass without one of the greatest parliamentary battles of Spanish history. They estimate that 85 to 90 per cent of Spaniards are adherents of Catholicism.

The most unusual pictures of a parachute jump ever secured in this country were made when Corporal Garland E. Cain, of Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., equipped with two three-ounce special cameras held on shroud lines, made pictures during a para chute descent from a U. S. Army plane flying at 4,000 feet. Upper left depicts Corporal Cain just after he left the wing of the plane. Note his facial expression as he clutches for the rip-cord on his 'chute. Dirigible, To Be "Air-Born" Saturday, Will Require Utmost in Piloting Skill

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Aug. 7 When Mrs Herbert Hoover christens the new dirigible Akron tomorrow, the ship will be "air born" or floated, corresponding to the launching of an ocean vessel, but the task of actual flight is expected to come in about three weeks.

Actual flight will require all the knowledge of lighter than-air craft that has been accumulated

It is no small task to guide a structure longer than a 50-story skyscraper and higher than an 11-story building against capricious wind currents and sudden changes in temperature For this reason, Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, who will be captain of the dirigible, and his officers are here busily engaged training the crew to the work of the ship

How well the contractor has performed the task of construction is something for the naval board of inspection of five to decide. Five trial flights of the ship are planned, the last one of 48 hours duration According to David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, the ship must be in the air at least 75 hours before the navy accepts it.

The ship must be tested for speed; it must go through altitude trials, tests must be made upon the rapidity with which it can take on speed and slow down; her lift will be measured; interior ventilation and pressure equalization studied; fuel consumption determined,

Doolittle Sees New Speed Mark for Land Planes

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug 7 That a faster speed than any land plane ever has traveled before will be attained in the national air races here Aug. 29 to Sept. 7, was the prediction today of Major James H. Doolittle. It will be very close to 300 miles an hour, he said

Doolittle, "the flying hellion," himself will fly a plane which he expects will have a 300-mile-an-hour speed. He was to inspect it today.

The fastest any land plane thus far has traveled is 278.48 miles an hour, a record made by Adjutant Bonnet of France at Istres, France. The American record is held by Lieut Alford Williams, former navy ace, who took a plane 266.59 miles an hour.

Doolittle said he expects three aviation speed records to be broken in this year's races. They include Captain Frank M. Hawks' Los Angeles to New York time of 12 hours and 25 minutes. Doolittle predicted Hawks' record will be lowered by a full hour.

The assault on Hawks' time is expected as an extension of the trans-continental free-for-all derby for men and women pilots, to start Aug. 31 at Los Angeles. The end of this race is Cleveland, but several of the entrants have indicated they will continue the dash from Cleveland to New York. Doolittle will be among them.

COMPLICATIONS DEVELOP OVER ACTS OF FLIERS

Cameras Carried In Planes Bring Objections from Officials

SOME FAVOR LENIENCY

Pangborn, Herndon and Three Navy Airmen Involved in Investigation.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Aug. 7—International complications arose today over the landing here of Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American airmen, and a flight of three United States naval aviators over Japanese fortifications

The problem created by the landing of Pangborn and Herndon without a permit and the subsequent discovery of a camera in their airplane was discussed by officials of the home, foreign navy, war and communications departments of the Japanese government.

Some Favor Leniency

It was reported some officials favored leniency toward the American airmen, while others expressed the belief some form of punishment should be administered in view of a recent incident involving three United States navy fliers from the fleet off Chefoo.

Darien newspapers asserted that three American navy airmen flew over the Kwantung fortifications and took photographs. The newspapers stated the American admiral offered an explanation to the Japanese consul at Tsingtau that the fliers, who had been cruising, had become lost.

The Japanese, the newspaper said, did not consider the explanation sufficient, and the American consul at Dairen was reported to have asked Washington for instructions regarding the incident.

Pangborn and Herndon, made plans today for a non-stop flight to Seattle despite the fact their big red monoplane was under lock and key at the ministry of communications hangar at Tachikawa airdrome near here.

Starting Time Uncertain

"We are undecided yet as to when we will take off," Pangborn said ,"but we may wait here until the arrival of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. However, we may start next week."

Pangborn said he based his statement on the assumption that their difficulties with the Japanese aviation bureau resulting from their failure to obtain a permit to land in Japan soon would be straightened out. This belief was shared by officials of the ministry of communications.

A moving picture camera was at the bottom of the fliers' trouble. When Pangborn and Herndon took off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, they had no permit to land in Japan. The American Embassy here filed

Cigaret Wholesalers Say State Tax Is Hardship

Local Dealers Say Stamps Cannot Be Handled on 10 Per Cent Allowance Permitted by Commission; Each Package Must Bear Ohio Revenue Sticker.

Wholesale cigaret dealers have begun to feel they have been made the "goat" in the new cigaret tax law passed by the last legislature and which provides for an additional tax of two cents on each package of cigarets sold in the state, after Sept 1

Being purely a state measure, the manufacturers, most of whom are outside the state, have washed their hands of the matter, B E Bindley, of the Bindley Grocery Co said yesterday, and are leaving to the jobber the responsibility of seeing that each package bears the tax stamp.

Must Stamp Each Pack

This will mean, it was explained by Mr Bindley, that as each large carton of cigarets is received at the wholesale plant, it must be opened the smaller carton removed and each package taken out a stamp affixed and replaced in the carton and the carton replaced in the larger carton and resealed

The law also provides, Mr Bindley said, that this must take place within 24 hours after the shipment has been delivered to the plant, instead of being taken care of just before being delivered to the retailer

Although allowed 10 per cent by the state for this work, the amount will not be sufficient to cover the cost it was pointed out by the wholesaler and this fact together with the license fee of $200 a year and other expenses in connection with the handling of cigarets, has caused some wholesalers to seriously consider discontinuing the sale of cigarets

Question Not Settled

Just where retailers will obtain revenue stamps to place on any cigarets they might have on hand when the new tax law becomes effective on Sept 1, has not yet been determined Mr Bindley said The matter is now being considered by the commission having the enforcement of the law in charge, but nothing definite has been decided That they will be placed on sale in the offices of either the county auditor or treasurer, was the opinion of Mr Bindley

CLAIMS CAR

Chicago Man Awaits Action of Hardin County Officials

KENTON Aug 7 W M Hiett of Chicago Ill, representative of the Finley Drive It-Yourself motor car agency of Peoria and Chicago Ill, arrived in Kenton to claim a DeSoto motor car that was abandoned here by Howard Dunlap bandit youth who fled after the car had been put out of commission by a bullet fired by Lester Ledman, Kenton taxi owner

Hiett said the car had not been rented to Dunlap under an agreement allowing him to drive it into neighboring states If Dunlap is not found guilty of shooting with intent to kill in court here then the Finley company stands ready to prosecute that youth under a federal statute relative to taking stolen cars into other states, Hiett said.

WARNING ISSUED BY O. S. U. PRESIDENT

Tells Farmers To Be on Guard Against Agents Selling Bogus Courses.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7—Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State university, has issued a warning against salesmen who are reported to have worked in the rural districts of the state selling extension courses represented as being offered by the university.

Dr. Rightmire said one farmer reported to the university that he paid $87.50 on behalf of a high school student for what he said was represented to be extension courses for which the university would give credit. In another instance, a high school teacher made inquiry here on behalf of boys whose parents had been solicited to pay $200 toward a course which the university would recognize. In a third instance, a county agricultural agent reported that farmers in his territory were being urged to buy similar courses at $90 a year.

The university, Dr. Rightmire said, has only two kinds of extension courses, in commerce and agriculture, and has no agents selling them. Nor does it have any connection with, nor recognize, any agency selling other kinds of so-called extension courses, the president said.

The university offers 23 correspondence extension courses in agriculture. Of these, Dr. Rightmire said, 21 are free, and for the other two charges of $2 and 14 cents, respectively, are made to cover the cost of materials used.

The university also gives commerce extension courses in a number of Ohio cities during the regular school year. These are taught in person by members of the extension staff. The fee charged for these is only $6.50 per quarter per course, payable to the university through the instructor only.

EDUCATORS TO AID EMPLOYMENT PLAN

Keeping Young People in School Sought to Reduce Job Competition.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Efforts were under way today to aid employment throughout the country by keeping young people in school. Fred C. Croxton, acting chairman of the President's emergency employment committee, announced that plans had been formulated at a conference of educators and government officials to keep young men and women in school to prevent their competing with heads of families and others who need jobs.

Croxton said employment reports indicated young men and women were especially handicapped at this time. Even when they obtain jobs these usually prove temporary and idleness throughout the remainder of the school year results.

"During an abnormal time like the present," Croxton said, "the dangers of idleness for young people still in the habit forming age must be frankly reckoned with. Even more than in times of prosperity should we appreciate the need of school attendance."

Burke Given Life Term

... was captured a few ... near St. Joseph, Mo., ... enced to life imprison... slaying Patrolman ... ty of St. Joseph, when the officer sought to arrest him for a minor traffic accident.

Winkler, whose gang is accused of obtaining bank robbery loot and ransom money totalling several million dollars, was identified, Sheriff Fred J. Cutler said, as a result of a ruse. Winkler had given the name of Harry Kral, an airplane pilot, of Chicago. But the sheriff said he got the impression from a photograph that "Kral" was Winkler and told the injured man it was useless for him to do any bluffing as his finger prints had been identified. The bluff worked. Winkler admitted his identity.

The sheriff's suspicions were first aroused by the discovery of a pistol in Winkler's possession and a quantity of whisky in his automobile. A set of false teeth, so constructed that they will fit over Winkler's natural teeth, was also found, as were several eye glasses. The sheriff said Winkler, like Burke, used spectacles as part of his disguise. Burke has persistently maintained that Winkler was dead.

List of Alleged Offenses

Included among the crimes of which Winkler and his associates are suspected are the machine gun killings of seven George "Bugs" Moran gangsters in Chicago, in 1929; the gang execution of Frankie Uale in New York, the slaying of three men in a Detroit apartment house in 1927, the killing of a policeman in a $200,000 mail theft in Toledo, the death of an officer in a Louisville, Ky., bank robbery in 1925, various kidnapings, and the $2,500,000 robbery of the Lincoln, Nebr., National Bank and Trust Co. last September.

DIRIGIBLE REQUIRES SKILLFUL PILOTING

Giant Airship Difficult To Control in Varying Conditions of Flight.

Explains Control System

The ship is operated more like a submarine or ocean liner than an airplane, according to Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, second officer in command of the Akron, and former skipper of the Los Angeles. The control car is forward, protruding from the under surface of the hull.

"In the front of the control car is the wheel which controls the vertical fins or the rudders," the officer explained, "and right in front is the compass.

"An enlisted man has the wheel, and he steers the ship very much like you would a surface ship. In ordinary straightaway flying he just holds the ship on a compass course.

"At the left in the control car is another wheel governing altitude. Another enlisted man stands at this, and the officer of the deck, one of the watch officers, is also in the cabin.

"The altitude man has the real job. He has to be good, for he has to coordinate so many things. He has his instruments to tell him if the ship is rising or falling; he has his sense of feel and by day he usually has the horizon to guide him. The direction man usually is a seaman or a third-class petty officer, but the altitude man is a first class or chief petty officer.

Altitude Man's Job

"Now when the skipper gives an order to hold the ship at 3,000 feet the altitude man has to do it. The ship has to be held on an even keel. "When you realize that an inclination of a bare 8 degrees means a 20-ton lift you see that the altitude man has to keep his head up."

Other officers include the navigation officer to calculate the ship's course; the keel officer in charge of gas cells and ballast to keep her in trim; the engineer officer in charge of the eight engines.

Orders are transmitted through a telephone system with 18 instruments connected through a switchboard. If the forward control room is put out of commission, the aft compartment may be used.

THE REPUBLIC STEEL Corporation's salaried employes at Youngstown, O., started work yesterday under a wage reduction of 16 2-3 per cent. They will work only five days a week, at the old rate per day. Other workers are not affected. Such cuts remind the man with the white collar that there is virtue in unions when hard times come. But even unions may have to choose between wage reductions and a shutdown.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor predicts disorder if the depression lasts, and wants government and industry to prevent it. It is dangerous to predict disorder, for predictions sometimes promote realization.

Mr. Green's idea, however, may be to give capital a "little scare" to promote action.

CLEVELAND HAS 2 DOUBLE SHOOTINGS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7 — A quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rafal at their home here early today ended when Rafal, 38, shot and killed his 35-year-old wife, and then attempted suicide.

Doctors said he would die within a few hours.

At almost the same time as the Rafal shooting, Mrs. Mary Dery, 42, was shot and probably fatally wounded by her former husband, Burt Segel, who also turned the gun on himself. The shootings were in separate parts of the city.

Just before Rafal killed his wife, their quarrel had become so violent that three of their children, Clara, 15, Wanda, 9, Kazimer, 12, fled to a neighbor's house for protection. They heard the shots while there, ran back to their own home, and found their mother dead and their father unconscious. He had a bullet wound in his head.

Tobacco Jobbers Ask that Retailers Affix Cigaret Stamps.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7—Tobacco jobbers of Ohio, represented by Creary Davis of Toledo, former assistant attorney general of Ohio, today asked the state tax commission to permit the retailers to affix the state cigaret tax stamps. The state law provided the wholesalers would be required to put on the stamps.

The jobbers also asked that the commission permit the posting of a 90-day bond by jobbers for obtaining the tax stamps on credit from the various county treasurers. The proposals were taken under consideration.

CALLERS FAIL TO IDENTIFY "JACK"

County Home Officials To Go Ahead with Funeral Plans.

Dudley Miller Outcalt of the Mercantile Library building in Cincinnati, asking that a complete description of "Jack" be sent to him by telegram. The description has been sent and officials are now awaiting a reply.

Three Inquiries

The three inquiries yesterday at the county home were two telephone calls and a letter from Massillon. One call was from Cincinnati. The description given by the officials did not tally with that given by the person calling from Cincinnati nor with the other call which is believed to have come from a pay-station in Marion. The letter from Massillon carried a description of a missing relative but was not that of "Jack."

"Jack's" second spray of funeral flowers came to the funeral home this morning. A local florist sent a casket spray of gladioli and roses to add to the flowers given "Jack" by the funeral home.

The funeral will be Saturday at 10 a. m. at the Schaffner-Queen funeral home with Rev. Irvin Kauffman in charge. Burial will be made in the potter's field in Marion cemetery.

In addition to the letter which came from Mrs. Irvin Burtler in Massillon, officials at the county home have received letters from Mrs. J. Durant of 8624 Wade Park, Cleveland, and from Matilda Leibold of New Richmond, O. Telephone communications came from persons in Wilmington and Piqua besides the one from Cincinnati. All communications proved unquestionably that "Jack" is not the man the inquirers are searching for, county home officials said.

Paris claims that the last twenty-five per cent. reduction made by her merchants brings the costs of her gowns lower than before the war. If Americans keep on sidestepping Paris as they have for a year or two, the cost of Paris gowns may do a toboggan that will land them out of sight of pre-war prices.

Apropos of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's manifest bid for the presidency, wouldn't it be judgment on his part to demonstrate ability to do a little cleaning up in his own state before going after the job of running the other forty-seven as well?

An American woman over in Paris claims to have been robbed of jewelry valued at $35,000 while shopping in a department store there, but nobody of the name given by her can be located in New York City, which she gave as her place of residence. People will just naturally make a play for publicity from time to time.

The White House denies the gumdrop story, announcing that Colonel Nutt's present was a box of cigars. Cigars, of course, are far more in accord with the presidential dignity, but even at that, gumdrops as a confection are not half bad.

Thousands upon thousands of people have lost their lives and more than 50,000,000 are said already to be affected, or soon will be, by the rising waters of the rivers of China. We have had great floods here in America, but all of them have been commonplace compared with repeated floods in China which have claimed hundreds of thousands of victims.

It has been so hot that the 101 Ranch Wild West show has announced the close of its season. We do not recall having heard anybody state that it was particularly hot when it showed here.

According to a noted German psychologist, genius is closely akin to insanity. Maybe so, but to be on the safe side, let us refer to those showing marks of genius as being merely temperamental.

A full-length press picture held to be that of Miss Utah 31 recalls to us the remark of the late Mark Twain, after seeing some of the Mormon women, to the effect that the man who married one of them was a kindly, generous soul and the man who married a dozen or more of them, a hero.

When Romance Turns Sour.

On paper the Hoover dam looked like one of the greatest engineering romances of all time. Here was to be a Herculean labor, blocking a canyon with a mass of solid masonry taller than a sixty-story building and bulkier than the Great pyramid. Here was to be created a lake storing enough water to cover the state of Ohio with a foot of water. Here was to be constructed for the workers a model city set in the color of the desert at a cool altitude. For upwards of a decade men would live there, going down every morning to work in Boulder canyon, helping to make engineering history.

But as soon as the project left paper, romance started to turn sour. Thousands of laborers found their way to the Boulder canyon site and were turned away. Merchants intending to locate in Boulder City were unable to meet the government's requirements for the lease of land. Laborers who found employment collapsed in the intense heat, and were injured or frightened by the hazards of their jobs. They claimed that the contracting corporation controlled their sources of supplies. Resident Nevadans and other southwesterners who had hoped for commercial profit from the project were disgruntled at the federal restrictions on Boulder City.

Chronic investigators have caught the scent. They are keyed up by the baying of the professional complainers. There undoubtedly will be some attempt to engage public sympathy as a lever to change the government's policies at Hoover dam.

It is the public's cue to be respectfully inattentive of the fuss that will be made. No great construction project ever has been accomplished without untold hardship, and the Hoover dam project will be no exception. There will be accidents, suffering, injustices and death; they can not be avoided. If they could, the capable men in charge of operations in Boulder canyon wouldn't hesitate. There is no excuse for the disgruntled to carry their fight to the country.

Compromising with Crime.

This newspaper is not inclined to add to the volume of criticism which has been directed at the federal officers in Chicago as the result of the course they are reported to have pursued in securing from Al Capone pleas of guilty to charges of income tax evasion and violation of the prohibition law. We are, to the contrary, rather inclined to feel not a little sympathy for them. We say this while recognizing the fact that any compromise between law and justice is bad in principle and fact alike, and should be avoided if avoidance is possible without so clogging the courts as to render them utterly unequal to the task of handling with reasonable expedition the matters brought before them, and thus hopelessly nullifying the possibility of the speedy punishment of crime.

As the story goes, the federal officials persuaded Capone to enter his guilty pleas with the understanding that he would be let off with a prison term of two or three years. When the gangster appeared in federal court for sentence, Judge Wilkerson made the announcement that he would not be influenced by any agreement previously reached between the gangster and the district attorney's office; in other words, that he would not be a party to any compromise between the law and crime. Upon this announcement, Capone asked permission to withdraw his pleas of guilty and be placed on trial before a jury. The court took the matter under consideration, and a day or two thereafter permitted the gangster to withdraw his plea of guilty to the income tax law violation and set the trial for September 3, at which time Capone's plea of guilty to violations of the prohibition law will be considered.

Under ordinary conditions the department of justice would be equal to the task of going to trial in all the matters in which it found justification for prosecution under the federal laws, but conditions have not been normal in recent years. Since it became necessary for the government to collect income taxes to repay loans made to it during the war and to meet other expenditures, and Volsteadism added greatly to the list of crimes and many times multiplied the volume of crime, conditions have been abnormal. Federal officials have simply been buried under a flood of matters growing out of tax evasion and violations of the prohibition laws, with the result that settlements of tax evasion cases have been common and guilty pleas in many cases have been reached by agreement. Had Al Capone not been so conspicuous in the public eye; had he been just one of the general run of tax-evaders or violators of the prohibition law, it is very probable that the reported agreement would have gone through without a hitch, and that he would now be serving time in a federal prison. His operations, however, have attracted so much attention that what would ordinarily have passed unnoticed has attracted nationwide attention, and the feeling is general that one who has become so notorious can not be permitted to bargain with the law and the courts. Yet the course the federal officials followed in his case up to the time of the announcement in open court by Judge Wilkerson was the course they have followed in many previous cases, and we believe Attorney General Mitchell, when he makes public the inside story of the Capone case, which obviously he can not do till after disposition of it has been made, will say so, for it is known that he had planned to congratulate those responsible for the indictment of the gang chief, but held off when he learned of the Wilkerson announcement.

As a matter of fact, half the country is not only compromising with crime today, but also aiding and abetting it by hobnobbing with and patronizing criminals. It lily becomes those who pay tribute in any form to racketeers of any description or those who patronize rumrunners and bootleggers to hold up their hands in simulated horror over the course of the federal officers up in Chicago who secured the guilty pleas from Al Capone.

Another huge racket—that of smuggling aliens into the country has been discovered, so Secretary of Labor Doak reports. A lot of these discoveries would be far more impressive should indictments and convictions result from them.

The body of the bandit who killed a policeman out in Lafayette, Indiana, was found within 200 feet of the scene of the encounter and identified as a gunman and former convict at liberty through executive clemency. It would be interesting to know how many murderers have been turned loose by the pardon and parole routes to prey upon humanity.

The flying record of ten days and twenty-three hours from Australia to England made by Lieutenant C. W. A. Scott has been broken by Aviator J. A. Mollison, who landed near Eastbourne, Thursday afternoon. The distance between the four quarters of the globe are being steadily shortened.

Fifteen dollars was the amount demanded by a party of youths from a farmer near Ashland, Wisconsin, to stop a belling which had been in progress ten successive nights, following his wedding, and they threatened to keep it up till they got the money. They didn't get the coin, but they did get arrested, and are now out under bail awaiting court action. In this day of legal compromises the thing might be adjusted by giving the young racketeers fifteen days in jail.

The United States government is preparing a style book—a standard of style which it is hoped by the public printer will become a national standard of style for editors, publishers, newspapers, printers and writers in the matters of capitalization, punctuation, compounded and hyphenated words and the like. The handicap suffered by the average style book is that it is intended for the use of a lot of people who feel that they know a whole lot more about style than the people who designed it, and Uncle Sam's product may suffer the same fate.

Editorial Opinion.

WHEAT MYSTERY SOLVED.

Why, asks the Baltimore Sun, do wheat farmers continue "to produce at top speed in the face of virtual certainty of disastrous prices?" Increasing production year after year, barring crop damage, constitutes a mystery which requires solution.

Many reasons could be found, a few will suffice. First, until this year, the bulk of the wheat produced in the United States has not been sold at "disastrous prices." Bulk of the wheat each year until this year has been marketed at a profit. This is the best reason for increasing production and is plenty good enough.

True, politicians have regarded dollar wheat and dollar-and-a-half wheat as money-losing wheat, but growers knew differently. The National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers research department will enlighten any one on the costs of growing wheat the modern way in Kansas, the Dakotas and other great wheat-producing areas. This organization is prepared to offer proof that wheat was produced by modern methods in Kansas in 1930 for 25.4 cents a bushel and 21.3 cents a bushel in South Dakota, giving the growers net returns after all charges, including taxes and pay for own labor of approximately ten per cent, if they availed themselves of prices prevailing in September, last year, of around fifty-nine cents in South Dakota and sixty-six cents in Kansas.

In other words, after one year's operation of the federal farm board, the wheat marketing machinery was still able to function well enough to give up-to-date producers in the big wheat areas net profit of ten per cent, though prices were but fifty per cent, or less of pre-farm board era levels. This being true, why should the Kansas farmer listen to Mr. Legge's warnings of low wheat prices, if acreage were not reduced? Had he not seen Mr. Legge take office as chairman of the federal farm board predicting higher wheat prices when wheat was selling at harvest time in 1929 at $1.25 on the farm or better? And had he not seen Mr. Legge's prediction of higher prices go awry? Then why pay too much attention to Mr. Legge's warnings of twenty-five-cent wheat when he resigned to return to private business? Mr. Legge might be wrong again, but this time he wasn't. At last, Mr. Legge has been found to have been right on one point at least, viz., twenty-five-cent wheat.

For the wheat producer in Ohio and other centers of smaller production, 1930 prices were money-losing prices. Farmers in these areas, however, have been educated to grow wheat, clover, corn and other crops in rotation to maintain soil properties. Wheat is grown outside the big producing areas quite as much as a step in crop rotation as for profit, if not more so. Then too, as one Michigan farmer's wife remarked: "With taxes so high and with wheat worth half as much as it used to be, John planned on growing twice as much in order to meet the taxes."—Toledo Blade.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Monday, August 7.

Rev. Joseph Reinicke, pastor of the Salem's Evangelical Protestant church, announced that he would leave Marion after a service here of six and a half years to accept a charge in Wooster.

Mrs. C. W. Leffler and son, Carl, left for a stay of three weeks at Bay View, Michigan.

Judge Daniel Babst issued an order of sale of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion interurban line.

Marion made eleven hits and three errors while Lancaster made fourteen hits and but one error, but luck was with the home team, which won nine to seven.

The Ammann hardware store was burglarized and eleven revolvers valued at $85 carried off.

What Will Better Marion?

The following are the answers of three citizens to the question, "What Will Better Marion?—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

A—A live chamber of commerce.

B—A city manager form of government.

C—The employers of this city should immediately go to an eight-hour a day, five days a week, until unemployment comes down to normal. They should also give preference in employment to unemployed residents of Marion.

Use of Golden rule by all in business and social life.

Let everybody boost for Marion. Every business that merits consideration should be supported. Offer constructive criticism, help everybody improve upon their vocation. We need better cooperation between our local governmental bodies. There is too much petty politics and jealousy which creates inefficiency and failure of purpose. Be more democratic.

Deficient Diet—Common Cold.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

For ever and ever the common cold has been the cause of annoyance and discomfort. In spite of numerous experiments, as yet no way has been revealed to prevent this too frequent affliction.

Now comes the statement that deficiencies in diet may be the sole cause of colds. Lack of vitamins as a result of poorly balanced diet may produce this uncomfortable ailment.

Since little has been accomplished in the way of preventing colds, this announcement will excite hope in many a breast. You and your family are sure to be greatly interested in the outcome of this new theory.

Scientific study reveals that lack of certain vitamins in the diet produces signs similar to those observed in the common cold. This is a worth-while announcement.

Though little practical information has as yet been revealed, the suggestion is of importance. It is a new approach to solving a difficult problem. Heretofore, all research in this direction has been directed along bacteriological lines and not in the field of dietetics.

It is a common knowledge that a diet lacking in vitamins lowers the resistance of the body. This is adequately proved in those cases of starvation and undernourishment in which complicating diseases of great variety have occurred. Of course it does not explain why colds may be present in individuals who are not undernourished.

You may not be actually undernourished, but yet there may be lacking in your diet certain necessary vitamins. This is not likely to be the case if your food is simple and nutritious, limited largely to fruits, vegetables, eggs, milk and salads.

The common cold, unlike other diseases, is not confined to any age or to any given season. It constitutes a problem that remains to be solved. Its removal from the list of familiar diseases will be a blessing to all mankind.

An English Wizard.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

If a great inventor, like Edison fo. example, were to devote all his time to it, he could fill the world with innumerable electrical and other marvels which would astound and mystify every one except the expert. Such a man, in a certain sense, is the English inventor, Archibald Montgomery Low. Professor Low is a distinguished authority on wireless, and a famous inventor. But he loves to make small inventions, in his leisure, which startle and mystify his acquaintances.

Educated at St. Paul's schoo, and the Central Technical college, South Kensington, he was formerly Honorary Professor of Physics at the Royal Artillery college. He has received many honors, and holds many scientific positions of importance and responsibility. He was responsible for the design of wireless torpedo sending gear, the audiometer for photographing sound, the Low two-stroke forced induction engine, and the silencing of the London underground railway.

A description of a few of the many minor inventions which Professor Low has made in his leisure time may prove of interest. For example, there was the invention of the garage doors which seemed to open by magic. The neighbors would see Professor Low drive up to his garage, blow his horn, and the garage doors swing open as if endowed with human intelligence. The secret of this invention was a violin string attached to a delicate mechanism inside the door. As soon as a certain note was sounded, the violin string vibrated. This vibration operated an electric switch which in its turn locked and unlocked the doors. It was convenient for the motorist, who could drive up to the locked doors of his garage, blow his horn, unlock the doors, drive through and lock the doors again—without ever leaving his seat.

Another interesting invention is the cigaret for the motorist. The ash does not blow off under the influence of the wind, and fly into the motorist's eyes. The ordinary cigaret was treated by Professor Low in a manner which, while leaving the tobacco unharmed, kept the ash solidified. The cigaret remains intact, and when the smoker has had his smoke, he throws the whole cigaret away. Another convenient gadget invented by Professor Low is a box for attachment to the dashboard. Every time a cigaret is taken from the container, it is automatically ignited.

A useful invention for the inebriate who returns home late in an intoxicated condition, with the key, but unable to find the keyhole, is the selenium lock. All the belated drunk has to do is to turn his pocket flashlight upon a certain spot on the door—if he can find it! The door unlocks itself and swings open. Inserted in the door is a selenium cell, which is sensitive to light. Under the ray of the electric torch its electrical resistance is altered; and this change in turn operates a catch and causes the door to swing wide.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Oldest County and Youngest.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

It is a singular fact that the oldest county in the state and the youngest are contiguous. The oldest is, of course, Washington, and the last to be created is Noble. For many miles on Washington's northern boundary Noble touches it.

When Washington county was created by proclamation of Governor Arthur St. Clair, it included nearly half of the present area of the state. It took in all the eastern portion of the state and extended as far west on the Lake Erie shore as the city of Cleveland. Below, the western boundary was formed by the Cuyahoga, the Tuscarawas and the Scioto rivers.

The name, of course was given it in honor of General Washington.

Noble county was created by act of the legislature March 11, 1851. Portions of it were taken from the counties of Monroe, Washington, Morgan and Guernsey. It is the most irregular in outline of all the counties of the state, there being no less than thirty-two right angles in the county's boundary line. It is one of the smallest counties in the state, though not the smallest.

The late Colonel William A. Taylor is authority for the statement that the county was named in honor of Warren P. Noble, of Tiffin. He was a prominent lawyer and actively identified with Democratic state politics of the Civil war period. He was a member of the forty-fifth and forty-sixth general assemblies as the representative of his county. Later he was elected a representative in the thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth congresses.

It was while Mr. Noble was a member of the legislature that the bill creating Noble county came up. Since four existing counties were vitally interested, there was a hard fight over it. Its friends found that they lacked one vote of enough to put the bill through. That one they secured from Representative Noble on consideration that his name be given to the county, and it was done.

The Parisian Revue.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

The most offensive spot in the curren hibit is a naked cooch dance by a black b and his saddle-colored mate, likely never plicated for suggestiveness on the most a doned circus lot. Even French customers, so ticklish about such didoes, hissed. An gentleman from Atlanta stormed out.

The only excuse for the entire performa was a graceful quartet of adagio dancers w twirled a sylph-like blonde in breathless swoops. They seemed as out of place as a stevedore at a Park avenue tea. Lemercier French chanteur, who was billed for America but feared seasickness, was the star. Also author.

The Folies was originally designed for cosmopolitan crowds gravitating to Paris. The program is printed still in French, German, English and Spanish, but its thin patronage the night we were there was mostly Americans who all seemed to feel a bit shame-faced.

The institution has become a trap for what is known as "yokel yanking." Missing somehow the ubiquitous program passers in entering I asked an usher to send one. A Frenchman pays a franc for a program. I tendered five francs and the attendant stood impertinently with hand outstretched for more.

Yet visiting the Folies was not without a silver lining. In departing Mrs. Ray Long in our party, found a purse on the pavement outside containing more than $600. We spent hectic hours running down the owner and found her at 3 a. m. in a modest pension a gold star mother, frantic over her loss.

Nothing is so intricately paradox as the French mind. A native will stand in the rain reading a newspaper. Leisure hours are spent in the woods. Communism in Turkestan.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

With every one talking of Russia it is interesting to consider the effects of the soviet regime in Turkestan, that Asiatic stronghold of the Moslem.

The nomads of these plains, people who have straggled along in this part of the world content with their traditions, their religion and their means of securing a livelihood have been suddenly yanked up to the twentieth century by the long, powerful and cunning arm of the U. S. S. R.

Imagine airplanes flying where caravans were the main means of transportation a few years before. Imagine the radio among herdsmen and illiterate peasants. Imagine groups of those who can not read clustering eagerly around a more educated brother, who reads from a soviet-controlled newspaper of such modern things as five-year plans, freedom for Moslem women, irrigation projects and atheistic doctrines.

That is what you will see in picturesque Turkestan today!

Perhaps the hardest task Stalin's followers face is the one of disintegrating the Moslem faith. They are making progress, but principally among the younger natives. The older men still prefer their mosques to hearing of the "Utopia" promised by the soviet.

Turkestan is important to Russia principally because of her great cotton crop. Turkestan is expected to furnish that commodity for all the union. She is also looked to for silk, furs and fruit. Millions are being spent yearly to develop these industries.

But even more far-reaching are the changes that the soviet is attempting to bring about in the social life of the natives. In this ancient and glamorous country we now find children's homes and workers' clubs. Women are being given equal rights with men—something calculated to make any Moslem's eyes open in incredulity—child marriage has been forbidden and sanitary stations are being established in the most inaccessible villages.

But the soviet is not doing its work bluntly and without skill. Subtely they inject the essence of their sociological ideas into the minds of natives and allow them to rule their own people. The country, like everything else within the far-flung borders of the vast empire of the ex-czars, is ruled from Stalin's headquarters, but local men are the local officials.

THE PENALTY OF GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Eckard Drug, or your own druggist.—The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—Adv.

"Kirk's father was a New Englander of English descent. He can't help being a blond," said Nelly

"Eg-zackly Adrian's hair is black and his eyes flash Such men love much. Kirk, he joke and smile, even wid Senorita Flores My Adrian—"

"Your Adrian can certainly love more frequently," said Nelly, trying to remember that it was her sun parlor "In any case, why tell a thing that concerns Juanita first of all, and that she apparently doesn't want told" The worst that can happen to any man in love with her is that he may propose and be refused Adrian will be better off if you will let him take the knocks that come his way."

They both turned, hearing Adrian go down the steps Voices came from the pier.

"They've come," said Nelly. "Now poor Theoneste, you shall have dinner"

* * *

The bulbul bush had blossomed. Kirk sat beside it in the dark garden, thinking perhaps Juanita would come to him there He recalled how, on Adrian's last visit she had come to him, how they had walked under the magnolias.

But she was not avoiding Adrian tonight Kirk could see her through the windows, laughing with Adrian, guitar on her knee Her voice came to him mingling with the perfume of the bulbul bush with the glow of the moon, just shouldering its way above the trees

Kirk and Juanita had watched for the moon from the Isle of Caprice They had forgotten how late it would be tonight. How close she had come to him then Words were not needed. Then the marquesa had come running, waving her gains crashing a stone into their pool of silence

"Look'" the marquesa had cried "Now we will go home"

She had sat with them on their trip back, had prattled of her luck, of how hungry she was. Kirk and Juanita had both been very still and now since dinner Juanita had seemed farther away than ever. Now it was Kirk she was avoiding, singing to Adrian.

Kirk knew what the Spanish words meant It was the song she had taught him the night before. Adrian was listening with all his gift of passionate intensity, as if the song were a declaration of Juanita's love. Madame Fouche sat watching them, fanning with what looked to Kirk like disapproval Nelly, he knew, was in the sun parlor, the marquesa probably beside her.

There was another song Kirk wanted her to teach him. She had sung its sobbing melody with such fire and pathos that he had loved it best of all. Kirk hoped she would not sing those words tonight, even in Spanish.

Kirk started. She was singing them.

"Not because I sing
Is my heart joyful.
But like the swan, in dying,
I sing, 'I love you.'"

Kirk could not watch her singing that song, Adrian beside her. He walked deeper into the garden.

Madame Fouche, in the house, wished to talk with the marquesa The marquesa was coming to sit with her presently, but first she must telephone the Hotel Tijon in New Orleans. She had broken her lorgnettes, she explained, and they must send the other pair.

Madame liked the marquesa The marquesa had appreciated her old silver and the solid gold punch bowl which Monsieur Fouche had bought after a coup in the market when Adrian was born. Madame could see that the marquesa had been touched by the inscription on the bowl which was that of an enthusiastic father The marquesa had also admired Madame Fouche's pearls. Many women were jealous of Madame's pearls but not the marquesa.

Madame felt that so sympathetic a lady would appreciate her maternal solicitude for Adrian Madame would draw the marquesa on the subject of Juanita's prospective husband Nelly might have misunderstood the marquesa's statements, or might have exaggerated them to get Adrian out of the way

Madame adroitly opened the conversation from another angle

"Nelly is very careless" said Madame in French, when the marquesa had finished telephoning, and they were sipping their coffee together.

"'Careless?" repeated the marquesa.

"In every day" asserted Madame "Not only does she leave her jewelry, which she affects to love, lying all about, but-"

"Surely you are wrong, Madame I have not seen—"

"In town' murmured the marquesa 'I thought you meant here"

"I do not know," Madame had not designed to tarry so long on the subject of Nelly's carelessness with pearls "In New Orleans she keeps her valuable in a simple drawer with a simple lock. The servants know where they are. I myself have seen them there."

"They are probably very close to her hand," surmised the marquesa

"Oh, yes'" with a shrug "In her bedroom She says no burglar would ever look there."

"Then it is not carelessness," smiled the loyal marquesa

Madame sipped her coffee. "To me it is taking chances," she persisted. "And Nelly is careless in the things she says For instance, she told me that Senorita Flores—"

Ah, that was very different. The marquesa drew closer to Madame, who lowered her voice, for Adrian and Juanita sat only a short distance away.

But Nelly had not been careless even in regard to that. The marquesa felt that Madame should know it. Juanita had wished it kept a secret, but she—Carlota—knew the feelings of a mother.

Nelly had not exaggerated. On the contrary, the marquesa told Madame of certain complications connected with Juanita's betrothal, complications she had not mentioned to Mrs. Belaise. Madame fanned agitatedly.

Oscar went out into the garden with coffee for Mister Kirk. Kirk saw him coming, went toward him. He had decided to send Juanita a message.

"Say to Senorita Flores that the bulbul bush is in bloom"

"Mus' I say you tol' me so, suh?"

"No. Just say that."

Oscar went off doubtfully. Kirk, watching him through the window, saw him approach Juanita's chair, saw Juanita look up at him. "De bulbul bush in bloom, ma'am" Kirk knew how Oscar would say it.

But Juanita did not come.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

AFTER my ant had been shot in the front yard by Feeble yesterday and stang by all the yellow jackets, and I had been made to burn the yellow jackets out, after I had told them that I wasn't mad at them because of what they done to my ant, we all went over to the Lost Bag of Tripe's soda water stand and I was going to buy some if he would sell them six bottles for a quarter, but he wouldn't do it, so I told him I would keep my four bits till he would. Then he said I was going to have four bits all my life. So I still had my four bits this morning, and when I had milked the cows and had fed my face and the bunch was there we went over to his house on the way to the pasture and we watched him bring his tub out and fill it with water from the hose, and then the ice man came and put a big hunk of ice in the tub for him, and then he went in and got a basket full of bottle of soda out of the ice box and brang them out and put them in the tub. I offered him four bits for twelve bottles but he only grianed at me, so we went around to the store and asted the man if he would give us twelve bottles for four bits, and when I showed him the four bits he said he would. So he got them out of the ice box and gave them to us and told us to bring back the bottles and we skun out Just when we were going to begin to drink our soda standing in front of the Lost Bag of Tripe's an auto load of folks going on a picnic came along and stopped and the man asted me if it was cold and I handed him my bottle to try, and he said it was ice cold and to give one to each one in the auto, and there was eleven in it. And the man gave me fifty-five cents, and we took the empty bottles and went back to the store and left the Lost Bag of Tripe hollering for his brother. Then we went back and drank it all around his stand. He certainly was sore. Then we went to Frenchy's and washed out one of the bottles and filled it with strong salt water and put the cap on and went back by his stand, and Hopper carried it inside his waist and everyone trusts Hopper, so he got close enough to sneak it into the tub with the others So we didn't have much fun today We were around his stand all day waiting for him to sell the salt and water to someone. He sold quite a lot of soda but everyone that bought it wanted one of the colored kind. I would hate to be so mean that I could have a soda water stand and not treat all my little playmates every once in a while the Lost Bag of Tripe. We had a But if I had one I wouldn't treat supprize for supper. My grandfather had ordered a watermelon and my father said it sounded like we had soup for dessert.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky's "Turn-About" Angers Madge.

THE flatness of Dicky's voice as he said "Do you mean that?" and the incredulity it breathed as he said "Do you mean that you would do that for me?" opened a window in my husband's soul through which I never had looked, before or so it seemed to me as I listened to him

For there was such humility in that question such joyous yet doubting relief because I had said I would cut out the offending character Vickers from my third act that I felt the sudden smart of tears which I knew I must not shed

As if a dark room had been suddenly illuminated I saw that Dicky feared this new work of mine far more than he ever had my friendship for Philip Veritzen Hugh Grantland or Allen Drake the three men toward whom at different times he has shown such unreasoning jealousy

He Knew

He had known of course underneath his apparent distrust of me that there never had been any danger of my preferring any one of the three men to himself, but in this new and absorbing creative work which he knew was the realization of a lifelong dream he feared that my brain might sometimes dictate to my heart, and subordinate him to my work

I think that an intuitive little fear of my own was remorsefully back of the quick assurance I gave him

"Of course I would do that for you" I said earnestly "After all you know Dicky that your happiness and welfare and those of the children come first If I can do anything in this creative line without neglecting any of you, I shall be very happy"

"I suppose you mean to chink it in in odd half days the way a housemaid attends to her social duties on her afternoons off"

Dicky's tone was sarcastic but I heard a quizzical note in it which told me that his volatile temperament was swiftly recovering from the doubt and depression into which his discovery concerning my character Vickers had thrust him

"If I can have an occasional afternoon off all to myself, I shall do very well" I said demurely.

Turnabout

"You'll have more than that" Dicky said with decision "I'll be right when she says you're in a class with presidents and premiers as far as demands on your time are concerned I don't know just how we are going to manage it but you're going to have certain days or certain times of the day when only battle murder and sudden death and not all of those will be permitted to disturb you"

"It's wonderful of you to be so thoughtful Dicky," I told him "and now if you will excuse me, I'll get busy X-ing out those speeches of Vickers"

Dicky looked at me curiously

"Will you think I've gone clean off my bean" he said "If I ask you not to cut those speeches out until after Veritzen has read the act?"

"I don't understand you" I said startled "If I am going to cut out the character altogether the less Mr Veritzen reads of him the better"

A curious intent remained in Dicky's voice and I wondered why he hesitated before answering me

"I don't want to wound your feelings," he said "and I probably am all wet but I can't help thinking that perhaps if you read all those speeches to old Phil you'll be spared the necessity of cutting out the character"

A Cruel Criticism

He was actually stammering as he finished but I did not wonder for it must have been embarrassing for him to suggest the thing to me which I read into his words

"You mean I suppose" I said slowly and for the life of me I could not keep the chill from my voice, "that Philip Veritzen himself will delete the character of Vickers before I have a chance to volunteer to do so"

His face was brick red as I finished

"The Lord knows I'm sorry to tell you that old girl," he said ruefully I wouldn't open my mouth about it if it weren't for two things In the first place you ought to be prepared for the stuff I think Veritzen is likely to pull and in the second place you know nothing would make him wilder than for you to suggest taking out a character who has appeared in the first two acts which he already has read and approved"

I was bewildered and ashamed of the cold resentment which had seized me at this pronouncement of his If I were sincere in my repentance at having subconsciously emphasized traits of Dicky in this comedy character of Vickers I ought to be glad of anything which would enable me to get rid of the character without having to be forced into an issue concerning it with Phillip Veritzen But something deep rooted within me rebelled at Dicky's assumption that Mr Veritzen would sufficiently object to the character of Vickers to command his omission from my play

That Dicky read me aright, I knew when he spoke next.

"I knew I'd make a mess of things" he said. "You're sore and I don't blame you. I'm a brash impertinent pup, but I can't help but tell you the thing as it looks to me When it is a question of appraising a play or a book, I'm little George Washington II, III and IV although as you know, I haven't any particular scruples about stretching the truth in other directions if occasion demands it."

I knew that he spoke the truth. He bends backward in his love for accuracy where his critical faculty is engaged But his honesty did not make it any easier for me to forgive the slight to my play, an insult, so much more deadly to a creative worker than one offered to his person.

I knew, however that I must conceal as much of my resentment from Dicky as was possible considering the fact he had already caught something of my feeling, but before I could frame fitting words with which to reassure him, Katie's knock sounded on the door and her voice announced shrilly

"Dot Mester Veritzen he downstairs already vunce Vant to know eef you ready for heem"

MT. GILEAD MAN MAKES LODGE WORK A HABIT

JAMES W. PUGH

James W. Pugh Has Record for Attendance; Receives Many Degrees.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 5—One of the most active Masons in the state is a member of the Mt. Gilead Lodge No. 206 James Winfield Pugh, has been a member of the local lodge for 50 years and continues to attend all meetings regularly. He became a Mason Feb. 2, 1882, and was made a Master Mason the same year.

He was born in Gilead township and has always lived in and near Mt. Gilead. Though no records are available members of the local lodge say that Pugh has attended more meetings than any other Mason and that it is not alone due to his many years of membership but to his habit of making every effort to attend each meeting. For many years he has been called on to put on degree work and often without notice. His thorough familiarity with the ritual has enabled him to handle all the work without advance notice.

Operates Farm

In addition to his lodge work Mr. Pugh is well known as a farmer. At present he operates a farm a short distance southwest of Mt. Gilead. For many years he has acted as a gatekeeper at the Morrow county fair and until this year he has acted as marshal of the day at Mt. Gilead Memorial day observances.

A past master of the Mt. Gilead lodge, Mr. Pugh takes great pride in the fact that he has held every office in the local lodge and has served in some capacity every year since 1882. He was advanced to the honorary degree of mark master in 1883 and received the degree of Royal Arch Mason in 1883. He received the degrees of Royal and Select Master in Marion Council No. 22, April 20, 1898 and the Super-Excellent Master degree on the same date.

Serves 20 Years

He served as inspector of chapters for the fourteenth district in 1906 and 1907. For 20 years he served as Captain of the Host in the local lodge.

NAME GALION BANK IN SUIT

Dayton Firm Seeks Recovery of $2,800 in Federal Court.

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7 — Alleged failure of the Citizens' National bank of Galion, O., to cash a $4,373 draft in payment for 100 shares of stock sold to a depositor by the Huffman Securities Co. of Dayton, was the basis of a suit in federal court today seeking $2,800, the amount the stock dropped in value since April 11, last year.

The suit states that the stock and draft were placed in the bank April 11, the draft to be cashed to the credit of the securities firm within 30 days. At that time the stock assertedly was worth $43.50 a share.

National bank examiners closed the bank July 28, 1930, with the draft unpaid. On Aug. 11, the same year, the stock was returned to the Huffman company, plaintiff in the suit, and J. E. Casey, the Galion purchaser, refused to pay the draft which was returned by the bank to him. A. E. Evenson, receiver, and the bank, are named as defendants. The stock is now said to be worth $15.50 a share.

CONSIDER PLAN TO AID COAL INDUSTRY

Operators, Miners Discuss Unannounced Remedy for Present Ills.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7—A remedy prescribed for the ills of the bituminous coal industry, diagnosed chiefly as over-production, held the attention of operators and miners today, following disclosure that a proposal for government regulation of the business is under consideration.

A majority of the leading owners and operators in the vast coal fields of western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, withheld comment, pending announcement of the plan in full.

However, other operators ventured that the plan suggested a solution of the problem of over production which would clear the way for adjustment of wages and working conditions, major factors in the numerous walkouts in recent months.

Today northern West Virginia operators let it be known they were preparing for a meeting Monday at which they would discuss the suggestion "that the government regulate the industry as a public utility."

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray Looms Big in 1932 Democratic Scene

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Much of the commotion at the next Democratic national convention is expected to come from William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, lank, walrus-moustached survivor of the rip-snorting pioneer days of Oklahoma and now its cain-raising governor.

His latest exploit has been to station 200 National Guardsmen in Oklahoma oil fields to keep every flush well closed until 50 cent oil goes to $1.

The 101 Ranch show ran out of funds here this week and the circus hands and cowboys are trying to get their pay. "If Alfalfa Bill knew about this he might help us," one Oklahoma cowboy performer said.

You can't keep a man like that down in times like these and all the pleas for a harmony convention when the Democrats meet next year wouldn't have much effect if Governor Murray had anything on his chest—which, according to advices from Oklahoma, he has.

"I hope to be on the national platform committee and if no one else will bring forth a good fundamental platform I will write one myself," Murray said recently. One of his friends here today said the governor is ready to go to the Democratic convention "and make 15 speeches if necessary."

He said there was no doubt that Murray would like complete control of the Oklahoma Democratic delegation, and would be the state's member of the convention platform committee if he desired.

From Oklahoma comes talk that Murray also will be the favorite son candidate for the Presidential nomination and that he will be in the running for the vice presidential nomination too.

Every depression brings on the national stage men of the people, Jacksonian figures, usually rough and salty.

Murray is 61 years old. His home is at Tishomingo, Okla., of which town he is known as the sage. He toiled in the cotton fields, worked his way through College Hill institute, edited newspapers, studied law, taught school, ranched, was president of the Oklahoma constitutional convention in 1906, served in the legislature and was a member of congress from 1913 to 1917.

ARMY WILL SEND 22 TO DELAWARE CAMP

Advisory Board Discusses Outing and Picnic at Meeting.

Plans for sending 22 youngsters to the Salvation Army camp at Delaware and for holding an all-day picnic at Garfield park in the near future were discussed last night at the meeting of the advisory board of the Salvation army at the Y. M. C. A.

This is the second year for the Salvation Army post here to send a group of youngsters between the ages of 11 and 16 to the camp at Delaware. Nineteen were sent last year. The number for this year was set at 22 by the board, and a campaign for raising the necessary funds will be started. The outing gives the children a 10-day camp, starting Aug. 21 and ending Aug. 31. The advisory board will visit the camp while the children are there, it was decided.

Ed. C. Watters was named chairman of the transportation committee for the picnic at Garfield park, which will be held as soon as the park is available. F. O. Rudolph is chairman of the committee in charge of the games and entertainment, and A. W. Newby, E. N. Hale, C. Z. Zachman, and Ensign Shackelford were appointed a committee to have charge of the picnic dinner. Members of the advisory board are to visit the outing at noon, to assist in the entertainment and program.

MAN, WIFE HELD HERE ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Sheriff and Deputies Arrest Pair at Fairground; Plead Not Guilty.

After pelading not guilty to charges of possessing intoxicating liquor, Mrs. Madeline Horton, colored, of Toledo today was being held under $500 for hearing in municipal court Monday morning. Andrew Horton, who was arrested with his wife was released.

Mrs. Horton was arrested at the fairground yesterday at 4 p. m. by Sheriff C. C. Fye and Deputies M. E. Baldwin and Chester Cosgrove. She was charged with possessing five gallons of alleged intoxicating liquor.

Cosgrove said he saw the woman take the sack containing a can of liquor to a garden at the northeast end of the fairgrounds. She and her husband, who was in a waiting car, were arrested immediately.

When arraigned this morning before Judge William R. Martin in municipal court, Mrs. Horton denied ownership of the liquor.

MAN CRARGED WITH GARBAGE VIOLATION

One of the few arrests for violation of the garbage collection ordinance, made since the creating of the city garbage collection system in 1925, was made this morning when police say they caught David West, Negro of Jefferson street, removing garbage from pails at the rear of downtown restaurants.

Service Director D. J. Harlow under whose supervision the city garbage collection department is operated, said this morning he had suspicioned someone without a license had been gathering garbage, but since they chose a time in the morning when the police were changing from the night to the day force, it had been difficult to catch them in the act.

A license fee of $25 a year is provided for in the ordinance regulating the collecting of garbage and a fine of not exceeding $500 for anyone collecting without a proper license.

MINE CARAVAN RETURNS HOME

Wives and Children of Strikers Promised Action on Pleas for Aid.

By The Associated Press

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Aug. 7 — Back to their dismal homes nearly 400 wives and children of striking bituminous coal miners made their way today, while their protest against the imprisonment of a score of mine pickets echoed through the hills of West Virginia.

Many trudged the 10 miles to the Galloway settlement on foot through the withering heat; others rode motor trucks, and not a few added dilapidated horse-drawn vehicles to the caravan.

Mission of Trip

Their mission here was to plead for food and to interview the Barbour county jurist who recently granted an injunction prohibiting picketing of the mines. A score of men were jailed a few days ago for alleged violating that writ.

The judge was absent, but the women and children were assured by county officials and townfolk that everything possible would be done to relieve their destitution. A meeting was planned here today.

Barbour county residents yesterday shared their food with the women and children. So did the imprisoned strikers. Some gave up their bunks in jail to their wives and little ones.

Hold Meeting

Last night 1,500 miners and their families took up the protest against the injunction at a meeting at Grafton. Van A. Bittner, international representative of the United Mine Workers in northern West Virginia, and Don B. Easton, president of the state Federation of Labor, addressed the crowd from the courthouse steps.

ONION GROWERS TO FIGHT REQUEST

Special to The Star

KENTON, Aug. 7—Indications are that the National Onion Growers association meeting in annual convention here today will pass resolutions in the business session this afternoon, protesting the request of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. W. W. Bowers, of Kenton, association secretary stated that the proposed rate increase, coupled with production cost would deprive the grower of any reasonable profit.

They had traveled by ordinary Pullman and special train for a day and two nights over a thousand-mile route for the purpose of further cementing Italo-German relatoins in a series of friendly talks this week-end.

Herr Bruening issued the following statement to the press:

"The fact that my colleague Curtius and I undertook the journey to Rome at a time when Germany is exerting her every ounce of strength, is struggling to render secure her economic and political existence, shows how extremely important we regard the personal contact and trustful exchange of ideas with the leading men of Italy of today. Notably with the distinguished chief of the Italian government."

PETER GOLDFINCH IS FIRST; CONFIDENCE FIRST IN 2:20 TROT

Estrellita Too Fast for Field in 2:23 Pace Taking Event in Straight Heats.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

IT just had to happen. They couldn't stage a five day racing meet with the classy field of horses entered here without having at least one race go into an extra heat. It happened all right, in the final race of the three event program last night. Peter Goldfinch did the trick when he romped home a nose ahead of Eleanor Forbes in the third heat of the 2:14 trot. Eleanor Forbes had captured the second heat and Senator McKlyo had taken the first heat.

Peter Goldfinch had been the favorite to take the event without the extra heat. Bookies had this bay gelding from the LaPorte, Ind., stables of H. Tonnington listed at 3-2 for the start of the event. Senator McKlyo was booked at 4-2 and Eleanor Forbes at 5-2.

Senator McKlyo got off to a poor start in the first heat but that didn't keep him from staging a garrison finish to lead the field to the wire by a nose. Eleanor Forbes pressed the Senator right to the finish but couldn't muster quite enough speed to beat him to the wire. Peter Goldfinch trailed both of the leaders by a length in this heat, finishing third.

Broke at Start

Had not Senator McKlyo gone off on a bad break at the start of the second heat there might have been no extra heat in the event. Hardly had starter "Steve" Phillips snapped the barrier than he broke and before he could be gotten into his trotting stride the field had a lead of at least 10 lengths. Ten lengths is too much for any horse to make up in a race like this so Senator McKlyo could do no better than finish sixth place although he did do some nice running. Eleanor Forbes came in ahead of the field with a length to spare in the second heat. Peter Pirella and Peter Goldfinch staged a duel for second, the former winning by a nose.

Peter Goldfinch, with the pole position in his favor in the extra heat stepped into the lead and was never headed. The first half mile was clicked off in 1.07¼. Senator McKlyo trailed the leader in second with Eleanor Forbes close behind. As the horses entered the stretch Senator McKlyo made a desperate bid for victory under the lash of some hard driving by his pilot, Lacey. However, Peter Goldfinch matched his big stride for stride as they thundered down the stretch and came in something less than a half length in the lead. The time was 2:12 for the extra heat two and one half seconds slower than the time of the third heat.

It looked like the favorites were in for a bad evening in the first race of the night's program. Confidence, driven by H. M. Parshall of Urbana, went to the post the pick of the bookies to run away with the event, a 2-20 trot, but things didn't work that way — at least not in the first heat. General X stepped right out at the start and took the lead over a field of eight other starters, holding it throughout most of the heat. Mamie Britton challenged his lead as the field entered the final turn but broke and lost out.

General X tossed away an opportunity to take the race in straight heats in the second heat of the same event when he broke within 20 yards of the finish wire. Coming down the stretch with a safe lead over Confidence, the winner of the first heat, broke just when holders of the tickets bearing his name were preparing to present them for payment at the bookies' booths, allowing Confidence and Bin Aubry to beat him to the wire.

Confidence took the final heat of the event without much difficulty. General X again broke in this heat, although this time it was at the start instead of the finish. Cecily trailed Confidence in second through a large share of the heat but broke on the stretch and finished third behind the winner and Bin Aubry.

Estrellita was too fast for the field in the second event of the program, the 2:23 pace (first division). The little bay mare sired by Adio Guy, racing under the colors of the Halst and Bryce stables of Toledo, left the field in the dust, taking the event in straight heats. The margin of victory wasn't very much in either case, but it wasn't

Short Ship Sidelights

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

Tonight is the final opportunity to see the best card of horse racing that has been offered patrons of the fairground oval in a long time. The complete program of events, the entries and their drivers will be found elsewhere on this page. The racing so far has been excellent and tonight will undoubtedly provide a fitting climax to a week of great sport. Post time is at 8 p. m. as usual. Four big events!

* * *

The big feature of the final night's events will be the handicap race. There are eight starters and the race should be unusually interesting to watch. While not an innovation by any means, there have been few staged on the local track for a long time. Pick the winner. You'll probably be wrong but pick it anyway.

* * *

Aside from this feature handicap event and the other three regular races there may be another pair of exhibition miles run by two-year-olds. Trixie Chan, the property of C. B. Mittenbuhler and Patchen Girl, the property of John Fellmuth were originally scheduled for the special events but it is possible one or both may be cancelled. Trixie Chan developed a slight ailment yesterday and her owner was undecided last night whether she would run. If the exhibitions are run, it will be that much more for your money. If they are not, you'll still be 'way ahead.

* * *

The attendance last night was estimated at a slightly lower figure than on Wednesday. Officials are hoping for a record crowd tonight for the final program. The races merit a packed grandstand. Maybe they'll get it.

* * *

The start of the third event last night was delayed a short time when a tire of the sulky drawn by Senator McKlyo went down. The damage was soon repaired and the race went on as though nothing had happened.

MARION BOXERS WIN CAMP PERRY FIGHTS

Conarty, Coppler and Gilmore Advance in Tourney; Grice Beaten Badly.

Special to The Star

CAMP PERRY, Aug. 6—Three Company B., O. N. G., boxers of Marion survived first elimination rounds in matches here Wednesday night.

James Conarty (Johnny Gerry) won a technical knock-out over Charles Reichtes of Company I., 147th Infantry, in the fourth round. Conarty had an iron-clad defense and bored in continually to outpoint his man in the early rounds. The referee, Sergeant Connelly, stopped the fight to prevent Reichtes receiving further punishment. Conarty is a junior lightweight.

C. H. Coppler, welterweight, Company B., won by a knockout over Robert Griggs of Company F., New Lexington, the Marion man's sledgehammer blows sending Griggs to the floor several times before his second threw in the towel in the second round.

J. Luzarder of Headquarters Company, 166th Infantry, third battalion, outboxed Grice of Company B, winning by a k. o. in the second. Grice was game, but Luzarder gave him terrible punishment before he succumbed. Grice also is a welterweight.

A flaming red-head, welterweight, named Knisely of Company I., Columbus, proved too much for L. Barnett of Company B, Knisely winning by a knock-out in the second round. Knisely was fast on his feet, and out-punched the Marion lad. Barnett did well in the first round, however, seemed fairly on his road to a draw with the other welterweight.

B. T. Gilmore, Company B., won by forfeit from Charles Jones of Company L., 147th Infantry, in the heavyweight division. Jones did not appear.

Phalanx Beats Bakers.

The Phalanx fraternity soft ball team defeated the Honey Krust Bakers yesterday afternoon 11 to 10 in a hard fought contest on the Steam Shovel diamond. The game was featured by home runs by Chapman, Staker and McCullough of the Phalanx team. Batteries for the game were: Phalanx, Nelvin and Chapman; Honey Krust, Miller and Capalo.

FIGURES SHOW WHY ST. PAUL TOPS FIELD IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Teams Lead League in Both Hitting and Fielding, Records Show.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 7—The figures give a good idea of why St. Paul was leading the American Association by the handsome margin of nine games today.

Albert Leifield's charges were leading the league in team batting with an average of .312, and their fielding average of .967 was the best in the league.

The Saints were outhit, 14 to 11, by Toledo yesterday, but their blows had more power and were better spaced, resulting in an 8 to 5 victory for the pace-setters.

Minneapolis and Columbus staged the longest battle of the season, the Millers gaining a 10 to 7 victory in sixteen innings. Singles by Sicking, Harris, McGowan and Henry with an error by Pitcher Al Grabowski in the final round, gave the Millers three runs and victory after each team had scored in the eleventh and twelfth frames. Henry received credit for the victory.

Milwaukee and Indianapolis split even in a double header, the Braves winning the first one, 5 to 3, although outhit while the Indians grabbed the second 3 to 1.

Louisville slugged out 15 hits to defeat Kansas City, 8 to 3. The Colonels concentrated their attack on Joe Maley in the first three innings, and Bob Welland and Roy Wilkinson managed to keep Kansas City's eleven hits fairly well scattered.

Hail the champions! The C. D. & M. Electric company after years of effort has finally produced a recreation baseball organization of sufficient strength to batter its way to a championship of the city Industrial circuit. The Electricians cinched the crown for 1931 yesterday when they ran up a commanding lead over Fairfield Engineering company and then coasted in to a 11-5 victory over the seventh placers. There is yet one game to play in the league but it will have no bearing on who wins the pennant. The Huber Manufacturing company and Erie Roundhouse, now tied for second place can both win their final games and still finish behind the Electricians. The Erie Roundhouse was champion of the circuit and also of the city in 1930.

"Bob" Gamble and "Hap" Applegett divided the mound duties for the new champions, Gamble hurling the first four frames and Applegett finishing the duties.

Gets Two Homers

Ed Fisher, captain and second baseman of the losers did that he could about providing a good upset for the league followers by banging out a pair of home runs. According to the scorebook, one of these came off Gamble and the other off Applegett.

Having lost out in their quest for the Industrial league gonfalon, the Huber Manufacturing company is now having to stage a pretty tough battle to retain the runners-up position.

Yesterday the Huber slid a notch farther down the scale by taking a 16-4 walloping at the hands of the Steam Shovel nine, a second division outfit. The defeat didn't put the Huber entirely out of second place but it lowered them to a tie with the Erie Roundhouse for the post.

Was This Terrible!

It isn't often that one gets to see a ball team as good as the Huber outfit play such a terrible game as did the second placers yesterday. Everything the Huber did was wrong. The Shovel hit Kellogg fairly hard but if they had gotten only a few hits they could probably have won anyhow. If an accurate check could have been kept of the Huber misplays there would be at least 20 gracing the scorebook today.

The Erie Roundhouse and C. & O. railroad teams staged a first class slugging duel yesterday with the Roundhouse finishing ahead by a 15-10 count. Burn, Sharrock and Gruber all clouted home runs.

Gasco Beaten

The Susquehanna Silk Mill avenged a former defeat this season at the hands of the Gasco club by taking the latter team into camp by an 8-4 score. The Silk Mill hopped onto Bronson for three hits and five runs in the opening frame and then coasted through the rest of the game to win. Two Gasco rallies, one in the second and one in the fourth were snuffed out by the Silk Mill defenses before they got more than well started.

Batteries and score by innings:

Gasco club	020 200 0	4
Silk Mill	302 100 x	8

Gasco club, Bronson and Young; Silk Mill, Burke and Conroy.

Erie Roundhouse	415 020 3	15

PUBLIC LINKS GOLF TOURNEY CONTINUES WITH NO FAVORITES

Play Moves Into Quarter Final Stage with Field Down to Eight.

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 7—The scramble for the national public links golf championship moved into the quarter final stage today with the title a toss-up among eight golfers from widely scattered cities over the nation.

If there was a popular choice for the crown that Bob Wingate of Jacksonville, Fla., lost by failing to qualify, it fell to a steel mill worker from San Francisco, Charles Ferrera. The San Francisco star shot the best golf of the first and second rounds yesterday to upset the tournament medalist, Dave Mitchell of Indianapolis, 4 and 3, and to win a hard fought struggle from Bob Gourlay of Seattle, one up.

Seattle also had a big threat in Ed Greenway, who galloped into the quarter finals by disposing of Bill Heinlein, of Indianapolis, one up, and Harry Ramsay, of Pittsburgh, 3 and 1. The third and youngest Pacific coast contender was Joe Nichols, the 18-year old high school sophomore from Long Beach, who turned in 4 and 2 conquests over Bob Isherwood, of St. Louis, and Wesley Casper of Louisville.

Joe Mercola, who is a painter by profession and a fine golfer by desire, represented New York and was granted a big chance.

PATTERN 2076

The cape collar has always been an attractive feature of children's frocks. In some years it is quaintly interpreted, as an echo of Kate Greenaway fashions, but this year it is directly borrowed from smart grown-up frocks, and is more popular than ever. The cape collar on this frock matches the flaring lines of the skirt, making a frock suitable for parties if interpreted in party materials such as silk crepe embroidered organdie or georgette and practical for every day if one makes it in sturdy cotton print linen or shantung, with bloomers to match

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Aug. 8

WHILE the stellar mutations point to a day of highly stimulated energies and faculties with many prospects of those being directed into gainful channels yet there are hints of sinister underminings, duplicity and trickery, especially in the launching of new projects or in connection with real possessions or tenancies

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of large activity and initiative, with the energies under high stimulus to hold enterprise But these are beset by a menace of fraud, treachery and underhand methods calling for precaution and awareness to insure prosperous issues Personal matters are very propitiously aspected and should bring happiness and gain A child born on this day should be active progressive, ambitious and constructive reaching happiness and good fortune in life with a good education and early training child should go far in of success.

THYLOX SULPHUR SOAP
. . . the sure protection against left-over make-up!

Before face cream, rouge or powder—Thylox Sulphur Soap.

Always—last thing at night—Thylox Sulphur Soap.

Morning—clear smooth, fine-textured skin!

Theo Phane, noted Ziegfeld beauty, first discovered Thylox Sulphur Soap and introduced it to other members of the company. Now it's in every dressing room.

In your own home you can guard against left-over make-up... as famous stage stars do

The beautiful women of the stage know that left-over make-up can spoil a good skin—that's why every dressing room at the Ziegfeld Follies is supplied with Thylox Sulphur Soap!... For this wonderful soap, with its fine, pure colloidal sulphur, takes away every trace of lingering face cream, rouge and powder and leaves the skin radiantly, thoroughly clean.

Sulphur is widely used in the treatment of abnormal skin conditions, and the colloidal sulphur in Thylox Sulphur Soap prevents microscopic skin infections, blackheads and other unsightly blemishes that steal away good looks.

Your druggist has Thylox Sulphur Soap, 35c a cake; $1.00 a box of 3 cakes. Get a box today.

* Soluble colloidal sulphur is asserted by Joseph (Derm. Ch. 19 51 and other) to be superior to the official sulphur in the treatment of skin diseases.
—United States Dispensatory.

Most sulphur soaps are made from ordinary sulphur. Be sure to ask for Thylox Sulphur Soap by name and thus be sure of getting genuine colloidal sulphur soap. Don't just say "sulphur soap"—say "Thylox Sulphur Soap"

TO MARK GRAVE OF UNKNOWN VETERAN

...ty Post Sponsors ... Honor Civil War Soldier.

Special to The Star

...Aug. 7—The lonely ...known soldier is ...ked after many long ...spot lies in a small cemetery near Mt. Victory where 67 years ago the body of a soldier of the Civil war was laid to rest by residents of the town. It was through the efforts of the Frank D. Bain Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, that steps were taken to procure a suitable headstone for the unmarked grave.

Upon its face will be inscribed the words, "Unknown Civil War Veteran." When completed it will be erected at the head of the grave by the veterans of all wars with fitting ceremony.

Despite every effort of citizens the man's name, place of residence or kin survivors were never learned.

According to the story told, the body, garbed in the uniform of a soldier of the Union forces, was taken from a train at Mt. Victory back in 1864. It had been consigned to that town for burial but no one ever claimed the remains. After many days of futile efforts to learn the man's identity and to locate relatives, the body was interred in the small cemetery.

KENTON, Aug. 7—County Supt. F. C. Ransdell announced that plans have been completed for a meeting of all school bus drivers in Hardin county to be held in Kenton either during the week of Aug. 24 or Aug. 31.

A representative of the State Automobile association will be present to inspect the county busses for safety and see if they coincide with the code.

If it is possible a luncheon will be arranged and the inspector will address the bus drivers on laws regulating school transportation.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—N. N. Wallack bought 30 old magazines at a book auction for one dollar. Before he left the place, a parchment dated April 11, 1803, and bearing the signatures of Thomas Jefferson, President, and James Madison, secretary of state, fell out of the periodicals. The auctioneer wanted to buy it back for $100. The document was a land grant of 1,000 acres in Ohio to Captain Larkin Smith, a Revolutionary officer.

• • •

WASHINGTON—Tell W. Nicolet, landscape architect and engineer, has been congratulated by President Hoover. The occasion was Mr. Nicolet's joining the American Legion. He was the millionth member. Since he joined on June 8 more than 26,000 others have become Legionnaires.

• • •

BERGEN, NORWAY — Nobody loves a fat man, especially in a submarine. The Nautilus has departed north with a Norwegian cook, leaving the American cook on the dock. They told him he was getting too fat for his own safety if the crew had to take to the ice.

• • •

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA — Some new jazz talent has been discovered. A group of aborigines made quite a hit when they sang tribal war songs. But when they launched into the latest jazz numbers, the audience refused to let them stop until the singers were exhausted.

Theater News And Reviews

RADIO ARTIST COMING TO PALACE

Bradley Kincaid, WLW radio favorite, will be the stellar attraction at the Palace theater Saturday and Sunday. He will put on the "whole show" on the vaudeville program. Kincaid sings the ballads of the Kentucky mountains to the accompaniment of his "hound dawg" guitar. Kincaid has had an interesting career on the radio, starting at WLS in Chicago where he stayed for four years. He went to WLW for a month's tryout and his popularity was so sudden and has been so sustained that he has a long term contract to broadcast several times daily and to make public appearances across the footlights. On the screen Richard Dix will appear in his latest picture, "The Public Defender." In the cast are Shirley Grey, Ruth Weston and Paul Hurst. Two billion watts of electric current, enough to operate 80,000,000 average-sized house lights, were used to light up the sets in this picture.

"Arizona" closing at the Palace tonight, suggests a story of cowboys, western ranges, etc., but instead, it's a comedy of love with West Point and West Point graduates as the setting. Arizona is where some of the action, especially the last scenes, takes place. Laura Laflante has the biggest, starriest eyes of anyone on the screen and she uses them to advantage here. A young West Point graduate, John Wayne, breaks their engagement and refuses to introduce her to his guardian, Forrest Stanley, a colonel in the army. Laura meets Stanley and for spite, marries him. They move to Arizona where Wayne visits them, unaware of Stanley's marriage. Wayne falls in love with Laura's sister, June Clyde, and Laura succeeds in breaking up the match, but the picture doesn't end there. It's entertaining, light comedy. Short subjects and a newsreel complete the bill.

Marion Guardsmen Settle Down to Camp Routine

Marion is expected to be well represented in the athletic events at Camp Perry during the two weeks training period of the Ohio National Guard now in progress.

Members of the two companies from Marion have settled into the military routine of the camp and are reported to be making an excellent showing in the drill work, word from the camp shows. The athletic events of the camp started Thursday night, and include boxing and recreation baseball.

The outstanding boxer of Company B, 166th infantry, of Marion who is slated to pack well in the events is Private James Conarty, a featherweight, known in Marion pugilistic circles as Johnny Gerty. Others of Company B who will compete in the events are Privates Bert Gilmore, light heavyweight; Charles Coppler, middleweight; Edward Hening, heavyweight; Ky Boggs, welterweight; Richard Griffin, middleweight; John Wilson, heavyweight; LeRoy Barnett, light heavyweight; Cleo Grice, welterweight; John Rickman, welterweight, Charles Miller, bantamweight, and Corporal Francis Manahan, featherweight.

A recreation baseball team representing Company B has been formed. The team met Company A team of Marietta last night. The team is made up of Amick and Esler pitchers, Boggs, catcher; Bolton, first base; McAnich, shortstop, Owen, second base; Lantz, third base, Manahan centerfield, Gilmore, right field and Conarty, left field.

Mess Sergeant Gayle Owens who, needless to say, is a popular member of the outfit, is on the casualty list with an injured foot, sustained when it was caught in a door. One of the bones is broken. Private Cecil Kearns is also on the hospital list, undergoing treatment and observation for appendicitis. It is not known whether an operation will be necessary.

Mess Sergeant Owens is assisted in his duties by Bert Gilmore and Lindsey Farrell as cooks, and Gerald Miller and William Dickson as "kitchen police." James Conarty is company mechanic.

Several men from Company B are entered in special classes of instruction, who will teach units in the company after receiving sufficient instruction. They are Corporal Paul Farrington and Lloyd Kerran in the anti- school; and Sergeants Lo- Plotner, Theodore Short Ralph Bristley are enrolled combat principles class.

CORN LEADS GRAIN UPTURN

Prices Average Higher as Crop Reports Have Bullish Effect.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 7—Led by corn grain prices averaged higher early today. Corn was affected bullishly by crop damage reports and by assertions that rains in important sections had come too late to help Irreparable injuries to corn in parts of Nebraska was noted Opening unchanged to ⅝ cents higher, corn later scored a general advance. Wheat started unchanged to ⅜ up, and afterward held near the initial limits.

Giving impetus to the upward swings of the corn market was an emphatic denial by Thomas M Howell, the largest owner of cash corn, that he had been selling corn short Howell said he now held 8,000,000 bushels of cash corn which he took on July deliveries, and that he had been constantly on the buying side up to the present time. He added that he would not sell at present prices, and that he expected to get more for his corn.

In wheat, there was notable absence of hedging sales, and instead a better demand from millers was apparent Berlin reports persisted that negotiations were under way for the purchase of 500,000 tons of American wheat because Estrellita couldn't have made it such. It was because her driver, Myers, elected to hold her in and keep the rest of the field from losing sight of her

The third heat of this race, with Estrellita out, was a real horse race Ray Wilson surprised everyone in general and the bookies in particular by romping home in the lead Ray Wilson was quoted at 6-2 against 2-5 for Lou Gratton and 4-2 for Virginia Bell. The winner passed Virginia Bell on the backstretch after running second all the race to that point and held the lead despite some brilliant efforts of Virginia Bell to beat him to the wire.

Loans up to $1000

It requires very little to make a man famous sometimes. George Washington cut down a cherry tree; Saint Patrick killed all the snakes in Ireland—both first steps toward fame.

Character is the foundation—plenty of energy and ambition are other prime requisites—in doing anything worth while.

Few of us care whether or not we become famous; but all of us would like to make the most of our lives—and to make those dearest to us comfortable and happy.

With character, energy, ambition and money, nothing can block your road to success and happiness. The City Loan makes loans to suit almost any demand. Don't be retarded and discouraged by lack of money.

TELLS AUTO DEALERS ABOUT PRINGLE LAW

Clerk of Courts Explains New Registration System.

The owner of an automobile must make application for a certificate of title before it can be sold it was announced yesterday by state officials in a ruling on the Pringle law to Clerk of Courts Everett B Grigsby.

This ruling applies to automobile dealers as well as to persons selling or trading old cars. After the owner of a car receives the certificate of title he in turn assigns it to the purchaser in space provided for that purpose on the back of the certificate. The new owner in turn must apply to the clerk of courts for a new certificate of title

The working points of the Pringle law were explained yesterday afternoon at a meeting of representatives of automobile dealers in the office of the clerk of courts.

After a certificate of title is issued for a car on which a bill of sale was previously held, the old bill of sale is sent to the state department at Columbus. Only one certificate of title may be held on a car at one time, the old ones being placed on file in Columbus

The Pringle bill provides that the certificates carry notations of liens against the car.

The Pringle bill will be in effect until Oct. 16 when it will be replaced by the Marshall bill. The Marshall law will operate under the old bill of sale system.

Well Known Marion Man Praises Ton-Gee

"I have been in very poor health for the past 3 years. My bowels were very sluggish, making it necessary for me to take strong laxatives to cause movements. I also had to get up 4 or 5 times each night on account of my kidneys being in a weakened condition. I suffered severe pains in my hips, legs and shoulders from sharp rheumatic pains.

"TON-GEE was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial. How glad I am that I did! So far I have taken 3 1-2 bottles and am very glad to say that I am greatly improved. The pains have gone and my bowels are regular again, my kidneys no longer bother me or cause me to lose sleep because of night rising."

LEG REBROKEN AS MAN FALLS AT HOME

A crutch that slipped and sent him falling off a back porch was responsible for the admittance of Charles F. Moore of Waldo to City hospital early this morning to set the bones of his left leg for the second time.

Moore was injured in an accident at the Commercial Steel Casting Co. about four months ago, and among his other injuries, suffered a broken left leg. The injuries required him to walk with a crutch.

Last night at the supper hour he went out on the back porch of his home in Waldo His crutch slipped and he fell off the porch, a drop of about four feet.
